The Soliloquy of The Full Moon By Noor Yusuf.

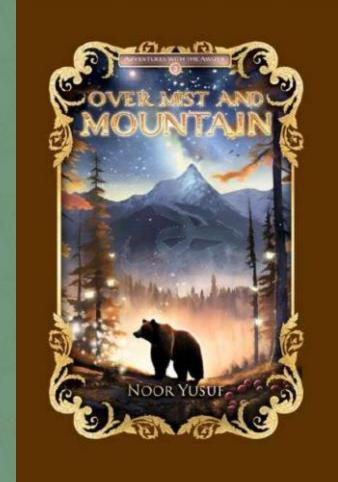

The Soliloquy of the Full Moon is an epic poem composed over twelve nights in Rabi al-Awwal 1436H. Over a thousand lines, it celebrates the virtues of the Prophet (s), the signs preceding his advent, the wonders of his birth and nursing, the first revelations and his night journey and ascension. It is the first work of its kind written in the English language -Barzanjian in form, Shakespearean in cadence - composed by the author at the age of only 15. It is a definitive contribution to Muslim western literature.

"Suddenly they heard the sound of hooves and horns. Men appeared between the trees, armed with bows and arrows. Jem turned to Mika. "I don't think we're in your forest anymore." When Jem goes to spend his summer holidays with his cousins in the countryside, he's expecting adventures. But not like these... Join Jem, Mika and Mu through a doorway deep in the forest, as they travel to mysterious lands, across deserts, swamps and rivers, encountering bandits, castles and snakes, in search of some of the greatest figures in history: the legendary Awliya.

By Noor Yusuf

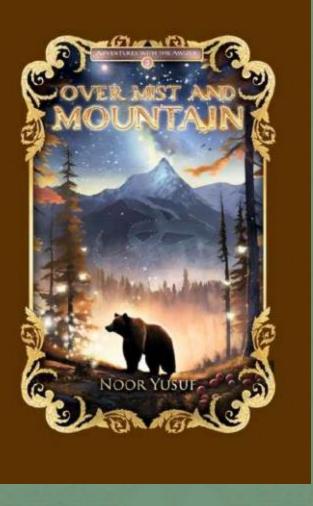

As their sight adjusted, they were able to make out the walls of a dank room. It was empty, damp and miserable. Along one side ran a gate of iron bars. This wasn't just a room - this was a cell. "It's a prison!" gasped Mikael. Why had the Mihrab brought them here? Summer began with the discovery of an amazing secret that took Jem, Mikael and Munira beyond the forest into the stories of old. Now, joined by a new friend, the adventures continue into cities of wizards, stormed-tossed seas and the legacies of Awliya heroes...

The summer and all its adventures have faded away and now Jem feels distant, disconnected and lost. His restlessness will not leave him until he goes back: to the depths of the woods, the old woman and her Mihrab, and the Awliya that wait beyond. But this time, he is not prepared for what will meet him there. Friend and foe are no longer clear. Danger emerges in the places he thought most safe. All he felt he could trust is shaken. He must travel the High Road, through the wilderness, in darkness and confusion, over mist and mountain. He must find answers, lost friends, the way through, the way forward. And, above all, the truth of who he is and who they are - the Awliya.

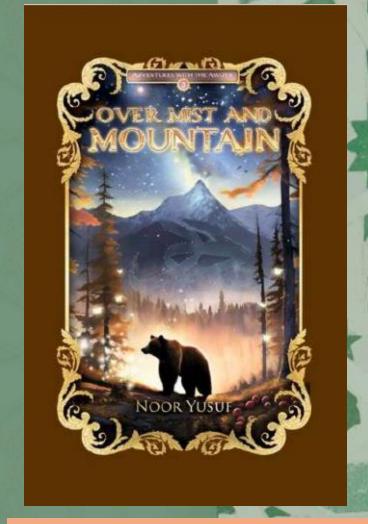

'Creative, charming and so much fun!' 'Magical, just magical ... I've read it over and over

'Utterly beautiful and enchanting'
'This book is so special ... I'm blinking back tears'

'After the Sirah, no other story has elicited so many emotions in me.'
'This book is absolutely brilliant!'

About Us

About Us

The Nur al-Habib Foundation is an eclectic organisation that has been serving the communities of the United Kingdom for 20 years. It focuses on holistic education, spirituality, and the production of high-quality Islamic media content, including courses, books, and music.

In addition, it engages in charitable endeavours and social welfare projects, benefiting both Muslims and non-Muslims, as well as the provision of weekly gatherings of remembrance, spiritual programs, and classes for adults and children.

Nur al-Habib Foundation began life in 2004 as one of the few Islamic media and publishing houses in the U.K. alongside its educational work, it was responsible for producing the nasheed albums of Talib al-Habib, pen-name of Shaykh Asim Yusuf.

About Us

Soon after, the Foundation moved into the production of Islamic books for both adults and children. We have also pioneered a number of long form courses, which students can join at any point and which cover major lengthy works of the tradition.

In addition, the Traditional Arts Society focuses on the revival of traditional arts and crafts taught by qualified artisans around the world. The Society aims to re-introduce young people and adults to traditional forms such as calligraphy, music, archery and other activities.
